VISION

We are delighted to introduce the "International Spanish Egyptian Congress for Tourism, Hospitality, and Heritage (ISECT)". This event is scheduled to take place in Cairo, Egypt, from February 4th to 6th, 2025. The conference is being orchestrated by the Sinai High Institute for Tourism and Hotels, Egypt, in collaboration with the Faculty of Commerce and Tourism at the Complutense University of Madrid, Spain.

ISECT seeks to convene eminent scholars and researchers from Spain, throughout Europe, Latin America, North America, Asia, and Egypt, fostering a collaborative environment for the exchange and dissemination of knowledge, scientific findings, and innovative approaches related to the global transformations in Heritage, Tourism Science, and Hospitality Management.

ISECT CAIRO 2025 revolves around the fundamental themes of Tourism, Hospitality, and Heritage, aiming to establish an inclusive platform that not only welcomes experts in tourism and heritage but also engages economic specialists, leaders in the hospitality industry, representatives from non-governmental organizations, and government dignitaries in a rich, interdisciplinary discourse.

Beyond the academic and scientific exchanges of the congress, we extend a warm invitation to explore Cairo's myriad touristic marvels and its profound natural and cultural legacies. Attendees will have the chance to visit iconic sites such as the majestic Pyramids of Giza and the historic heart of Cairo, both celebrated UNESCO World Heritage Sites and among the world's seven wonders.

Submissions presented at the Congress will undergo a rigorous double-blind peer review, with selected papers being considered for publication in various esteemed journals.

We eagerly anticipate welcoming you to the International Spanish Egyptian Congress on Tourism, Hospitality, and Heritage, ISECT, set in the vibrant city of Cairo, Egypt. This event is proudly presented by the Sinai High Institute for Tourism and Hotels, in collaboration with the Faculty of Commerce and Tourism at Complutense University of Madrid, Spain.

SCOPE:

Following the resounding success of the “CEGISTUR CAIRO” congress in April 2023, the International Spanish Egyptian Conference for Tourism, Hospitality, and Heritage "ISECT," is set to convene a global assembly of researchers, practitioners, and policymakers. This gathering will foster discussions on the forefront questions and challenges within the realms of tourism, hospitality, and heritage.

"ISECT" is masterminded by the Sinai High Institute for Tourism and Hotels, in collaboration with the Faculty of Commerce and Tourism at the Complutense University of Madrid, Spain. The conference is centered on the theme "It's time to exchange our experience together," which emphasizes the collaborative spirit between the Spanish and Egyptian academic communities in the fields of tourism, heritage, and hospitality.

The value of these conferences is immeasurable for those involved in tourism, heritage, hospitality, archaeology, architecture, and related disciplines. They have not only spurred research initiatives and informed tourism policies but also fostered meaningful collaborations, underlining their significance in shaping the future of these fields.

Complutense University of Madrid (UCM)

The Complutense University of Madrid stands as a historic pillar in the academic world, with its origins tracing back over 800 years to its founding in Alcalá in 1293, before its relocation to Madrid in 1836. Today, it is celebrated as one of Spain's most prestigious institutions for scientific and academic research, as well as being the most venerable university in the vibrant Spanish capital, Madrid.

Boasting one of the largest student bodies in Europe, the university is home to more than 80,000 students, supported by a distinguished faculty of 6,000 professors and a dedicated staff of 10,000. The Complutense University offers an expansive array of academic programs, including over 80 scientific fields, 230 undergraduate degrees, and 221 doctoral programs. Its facilities include more than 30 libraries, housing an impressive collection of over 2 million printed volumes.

Currently, the Faculty of Commerce and Tourism emerges as one of the university's most significant faculties, serving as a benchmark for tourism and hospitality studies in Spain with more than 2800 students.

Sinai Higher Institute for Tourism and Hotels (SIT)

SIT stands as a venerable beacon of tourism and hospitality education in Egypt and across the Middle East. Founded on July 22, 1993, the Sinai Institute boasts a rich legacy, having conferred degrees to 27 undergraduate cohorts and 28 postgraduate classes.

Offering a comprehensive bachelor in five distinct fields—hotel management, customer service management, airline management, tourism business management, and tourism guidance—the Institute is renowned for its multifaceted academic approach. Its 30-year journey is marked by robust international collaborations with esteemed institutions such as the University of Cardiff in England, the Fasa Institute in Finland, and a variety of universities in Turkey and China.

In a landmark event in April 2023, the Institute proudly hosted the inaugural Egyptian edition of the European Conference on Tourism and Hospitality Management, dubbed "CEGUISTUR CAIRO," in partnership with the University of Cordoba. This gathering drew an unparalleled academic assembly, with participation from thirty-eight universities, colleges, and research centers globally, and attendance by 60 professors from five continents, all under the watchful eyes of distinguished ambassadors and ministers. In the same year, the Institute was honored among the top five institutes in Egypt, a testament to its excellence and leadership in the field.
